THIRTY THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME - YEAR C

17 NOVEMBER 2019

First Reading

Mal 3:19-20

The day is coming now, burning like a furnace; and all the arrogant and the evil-doers will be like stubble. The day that is coming is going to burn them up, says the Lord of hosts, leaving them neither root nor stalk. But for you who fear my name, the sun of righteousness will shine out with healing in its rays.

Second Reading

2 Thes 3:7-12

You know how you are supposed to imitate us: now we were not idle when we were with you, nor did we ever have our meals at anyone's table without paying for them; no, we worked night and day, slaving and straining, so as not to be a burden on any of you. This was not because we had no right to be, but in order to make ourselves an example for you to follow.

We gave you a rule when we were with you: not to let anyone have any food if he refused to do any work. Now we hear that there are some of you who are living in idleness, doing no work themselves but interfering with everyone else's. In the Lord Jesus Christ, we order and call on people of this kind to go on quietly working and earning the food that they eat.

Gospel

Luke 21:5-19

When some were talking about the Temple, remarking how it was adorned with fine stonework and votive offerings, Jesus said, 'All these things you are staring at now – the time will come when not a single stone will be left on another: everything will be destroyed.' And they put to him this question: 'Master,' they said, 'when will this happen, then, and what sign will there be that this is about to take place?'

'Take care not to be deceived,' he said, 'because many will come using my name and saying, "I am he" and, "The time is near at hand." Refuse to join them. And when you hear of wars and revolutions, do not be frightened, for this is something that must happen but the end is not soon.' Then he said to them, 'Nation will fight against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. There will be great earthquakes and plagues and famines here and there; there will be fearful sights and great signs from heaven.

'But before all this happens, men will seize you and persecute you; they will hand you over to the synagogues and to imprisonment, and bring you before kings and governors because of my name – and that will be your opportunity to bear witness. Keep this carefully in mind: you are not to prepare your defence, because I myself shall give you an eloquence and a wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to resist or contradict. You will be betrayed even by parents and brothers, relations and friends; and some of you will be put to death. You will be hated by all men on account of my name, but not a hair of your head will be lost. Your endurance will win you your lives.'

In Time of Drought Prayer

O God, Lord of all creation, by whose power the whole earth came to be,
look upon our parched land, we pray,
and bestow upon it abundant rain,
That pastures, fields and paddocks may by your goodness thrive once more.

Through our Lord Jesus Christ, your Son, who lives and reigns with you in the unity of the Holy Spirit
One God, for ever and ever.

Wisdom for the persecuted

The 2019 Persecuted and Forgotten? report warns of Christianity vanishing from towns and cities in the Middle East as the impact of genocide has led to haemorrhaging numbers of the faithful. There were 1.5 million Christians in Iraq before 2003 but by mid-2019, the number had fallen to well below 150,000 and perhaps even less than 120,000 – a decline of up to 90 per cent within a generation. In Syria, Christian numbers have fallen by two thirds since the conflict began in 2011.

Ruins of Jerusalem Temple

This is from last Thursday's Cath News.

Imagine yourself trying to give courage and confidence to the small minority of persecuted Christians. Such was the situation in the early Church. Christians were a minority and they were persecuted by the Romans and the Jews were hostile to them. In the midst of the political calamities and destruction, Luke the evangelist is presenting Jesus as a prophet, capable of reading the signs of the times, and one who offered wise and insightful advice on how to cope with difficult times. "When you hear of wars and insurrections, do not be terrified; for these things must take place first, but the end will not follow immediately." (Lk21:9)

"They will arrest you and persecute you.... This will be an opportunity to testify. So make up your minds not to prepare a defence in advance, for I will give you words and wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to withstand or contradict. You will be betrayed... but not a hair of your head will perish. By your endurance you will gain your soul." (Ref Luke 21:12-19)

We in Australia are not persecuted like the Christians referred to in the report 2019 Persecuted and Forgotten. Yet the words of Jesus in the Gospel of Luke are needed for us too. Our Christian faith and church is systematically attacked in the political sphere and in social circles. Keeping up faith is a challenge. In these trying times, do not prepare a defence in advance." For God "will give you a wisdom no opponent can withstand or contradict."

To get that wisdom you need to be communicating with Jesus Christ; and you need to do it in a very intimate way. So ask yourself how intimate is your relationship with Jesus Christ. Make it a point in your daily life to communicate with God in prayer. Make the Word of God part of your daily reflection. Participate in weekly Eucharist with personal intentions. The more intent you are in your prayers, the more Jesus will provide you his wisdom. Such wisdom will help you to overcome even the worst of the adversities in life. Ultimately you will gain your souls.

REFLECTIONS ON LUKE 21:5-19

Living the Gospel - Comfort

We must remember that the gospel of Luke was written 50-plus years after the death of Jesus. Whilst Jesus may have said something like what is ascribed to him in this passage, we have to accept that the words are influenced to a great extent by the gospel writer. The gospel is not written as a biography but as a means of conveying a message about Jesus. To this end, the writer seeks to give comfort to his audience by having Jesus 'predict' all the things that have indeed come to pass in their community. The message to a struggling community is to 'keep going.'

Historical Context - Expectation

When the gospel of Mark was written around the year 75 of the 1st Century, the people of that community firmly believed that the world was about to end and that Jesus' return to earth was going to happen any day. Another 10 or so years later, the communities of the gospels of Matthew and Luke were enduring persecution and great hardship. They felt that surviving through this time of struggle would be rewarded with the return of Jesus. However, by the time of the gospel of John, another 10 years later, we see an acceptance that the end is still to come some time in the future.

Scriptural Context - Apocalyptic Writing

Hollywood has done very well out of movies about the end of the world and the term 'apocalypse' has come to have this meaning. However, 'apocalypse' comes from the Greek word meaning, 'to lift a veil' or 'to reveal'. The apocalypse is not the end of the world, but rather the revelation that will come at the end of the world. Writings such as today's gospel passage about what will happen at the end of the world and how God will be revealed are described in the Christian tradition as 'apocalyptic writing'. The most famous of these writings is the book of Revelation.

Bible Study

The Bible Study according to the Gospel of Matthew will continue with the next two remaining sessions on Tuesday, 19 & 26 November from 7 PM to 8 PM, followed by a mass. Please feel free to register your names with the parish office so that I can determine the number of the handouts to prepare.

The treatise of St Fulgentius of Ruspe on the forgiveness of sins

Saint Fulgentius of Ruspe was bishop of the city of Ruspe, Roman province of Africa, North Africa in modern day Tunisia, during the 5th and 6th century.

In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye as the final trumpet sounds, for the trumpet shall indeed sound, the dead shall rise incorruptible and we shall be changed. In saying “we,” Paul is indicating that the gift of that future change will also be given to those who during their time on earth are united to him and his companions by upright lives within the communion of the Church. He hints at the nature of the change when he says: This corruptible body must put on incorruptibility, this mortal body immortality. In order, then, that men may obtain the transformation which is the reward of the just, they must first undergo here on earth a change which is God’s free gift. Those who in this life have been changed from evil to good are promised that future change as a reward.

Through justification and the spiritual resurrection, grace now effects in them an initial change that is God’s gift. Later on, through the bodily resurrection, the transformation of the just will be brought to completion, and they will experience a perfect, abiding, unchangeable glorification. The purpose of this change wrought in them by the gifts of both justification and glorification is that they may abide in an eternal, changeless state of joy.

Here on earth they are changed by the first resurrection, in which they are enlightened and converted, thus passing from death to life, sinfulness to holiness, unbelief to faith, and evil actions to holy life. For this reason the second death has no power over them. It is of such men that the Book of Revelation says: Happy the man who shares in the first resurrection; over such as he the second death has no power. Elsewhere the same book says: He who overcomes shall not be harmed by the second death. As the first resurrection consists of the conversion of the heart, the second death consists of unending torment.

Let everyone, therefore, who does not wish to be condemned to the endless punishment of the second death now hasten to share in the first resurrection. For if any during this life are changed out of fear of God and pass from an evil life to a good one, they pass from death to life and later they shall be transformed from a shameful state to a glorious one.

FEASTS & MEMORIALS OF THE WEEK

Thursday, 21 November - The Presentation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (Memorial)

This memorial originally marked the dedication of a sixth century church of the Virgin Mary near the Temple of Jerusalem. The East took it up as a celebration of Mary's presentation to God in the Temple at the age of three, a non-biblical story from the apocryphal gospel of James. Established in the West late in the Middle Ages, the feast was universally observed by the sixteenth century. It celebrates Mary in her grace-filled life, wholly given over to the Holy Spirit from the time of her conception.

Friday, 22 November - St Cecilia (Memorial)

Though a late fourth century church in Rome was named after her, nothing is known of her life or death. Popular legends were written about her in the late fifth century, and in the sixteenth century she was named the patron of music. Remembered in tradition as a virgin, martyred for the faith. Her name is included in Eucharistic Prayer I (The Roman Canon).

"Just relax", the hospital staff kept telling Jim, but it was to no avail. Jim's wife was in labour and Jim was a nervous wreck. After what seemed like a week, to both Jim and the hospital staff, a nurse came out with the happy news, "It's a girl", she cried. "Thank God, a girl", said Jim, "at least she won't have to go through what I just went through!"
